'BAMBUVISTA' - EXHIBITION AT ST. GITS SCHOOL OF DESIGN, KOTTAYAM

Saint Gits School of Design in Kottayam hosted "Bambuvista", an exhibition highlighting the beauty and functionality of bamboo. This event showcased a variety of unique products crafted from this versatile material, emphasising its potential and sustainability in product design.

The exhibition, part of the academic curriculum for second-year product design students, was guided by designer and artist Mr. Rajeev V. K. Under his mentorship, the students explored the bendability and minimalistic design approach of bamboo, creating high-design products that captivated the audience.

Visitors were greeted by a calming floor installation made of handmade paper and strips of bent bamboo, setting the tone for the exhibition. Departing from conventional audio equipment, students ingeniously created amplifiers using the natural hollowness of bamboo, demonstrating innovative thinking and design.

The exhibition featured a wide array of products, from small planters showcasing the beauty of plant holders to lights, clocks, and even furniture. Each piece highlighted the versatility and high standard of design achieved by the students. The variety and creativity in their work underscored the limitless possibilities of using bent bamboo and engineered materials.

The whole exhibition was a constant reminder that bamboo usage is not limited to the traditional sense of weaving or just as support for construction, it can be made classy minimal and stylish everything depends on the maker. This was clearly showcased by the students of Saint Gits School. Bamboo can provide minimalist style and have quirky elements like exposed joinery to add more character and personality to daily used products.

Students also explored physical concepts such as tensesgrity to create products with unique selling points. The exhibition vividly demonstrated the utilities and value of bamboo, from its natural hollowness to the specialised tools used to manipulate the material across its grains.

"Bambuvista" served not only as an exhibition but as a reminder of the endless potential of bamboo in creating innovative, sustainable products.
